Reading Glasses

Reading glasses become necessary for most men and women as you age. Reading glasses come in many forms, and most people that need them start with the drugstore variety. These are single vision, single purpose reading glasses, about $20, that don't require a visit to a doctor, and usually do not include blue light protection. If you feel as if your vision isn't perfect, but you're not ready to make a full transition toward a prescription set, reading glasses are typically the first step. Oftentimes people will feel strained while reading, and while you might not struggle with your vision at any other point in time - it could be a sign that you need glasses. ... Read More
